Exposure When it comes to exposing an image, the general rule is that you expose for the white in the image and darken the shadows with exposure. The quantity of light a film/sensor can record is called _exposed_. The more light a sensor/film can record, the higher its _exposure_. The higher a shutter speed (the faster the shutter closes), the less light is recorded. For the _f_ -stops in this book, I refer to the number of _stops_ (lens power), not the number of _f_ -stops. For example, a 50mm lens has an _f_ -stop of _f_ /2.0. However, 50mm is actually a variable-focal-length lens that has a focal length of 50mm and a focal plane of 50mm. Therefore, 50mm is 50mm of focal length at 50mm of focal plane. The next higher exposure number represents a faster shutter speed, so the more light a camera can record at that higher exposure setting. While you always set the aperture (the size of the lens opening that lets in light), the only way to change shutter speed is to use a fast or slow shutter speed. Fast shutter speeds allow more light to enter the camera, and slow shutter speeds allow less light to enter the camera. No matter what the image you're shooting, you always set your camera's shutter speed (and aperture if needed) first, followed by your ISO and then any other settings you want to make, such as your exposure,

The latest version of Photoshop, Photoshop CS6, was released nearly 5 years ago. That's long overdue. While Photoshop is used by millions of designers and professionals, it's still one of the most complex and confusing software applications in use today. A bad Photoshop user experience is something you will probably encounter. If Photoshop is the only software you are using, you need to know the best way to master it. The main features of Photoshop are called the Photoshop Elements version. There is also a paid and a free version of Photoshop (depending on where you live). We don't include links to support pages, because they're obvious. If you want to know more about Photoshop or other Adobe products, check out: Lastly, the Windows version of Photoshop is available on the Adobe website, but we'll be taking a look at using Photoshop on macOS and Linux. If you're a seasoned Photoshop user, skip to the end of this article for tips and tricks. Windows Overview The Windows version of Photoshop doesn't have the user experience of the other versions. It runs on top of a Windows shell, which is a shame because Windows is often criticized for its easy-to-troll users. We like to focus on the Photoshop Elements version for Windows because it's less likely to be used on a daily basis. Workflows Working with Photoshop Elements on Windows is much like working with the Mac version, but with fewer features. This means that Photoshop Elements is also easier to master. Because Windows is such a popular operating system, Photoshop on Windows has a huge user base. This makes it much more difficult for Photoshop to innovate and improve at a fast enough pace. Adobe didn't replace the Windows interface because it would cause too much confusion. Instead, they created an interface that is still easy to use, but with fewer features than the Mac version. Because of the new interface, working with Photoshop on Windows has a workflow that is much less intuitive. It takes a lot more learning. Note: Photoshop elements does support Microsoft Office documents, but not all operations are supported. We aren't going to cover that very much in this tutorial, as it's not the focus of this article. Spot Healing Brush Photoshop Elements doesn't have the Spot Healing Brush feature, but we've covered a681f4349e

I know this is an older post but I want to point out the video that has recently been circulated of this lovely couple having the most adorable moment. In it, the two of them are about to get engaged and she takes his hand and says, "Okay daddy." I love this couple. The entire video is truly amazing and has your heart melting! The two of them are living together, since he moved in after they met. It really shows the connection and soul they have for one another, which is what relationships are all about. "My husband Derek and I met at BYU, and we have been married for 11 years," she said. "One of the most important things we do together is dance." She said she's seen Derek dance "every single dance" since they've been dating. "He's done all styles of dance, but his favorite is ballet," she said. "He's a fantastic dancer and it always makes me so happy to watch him perform." Her mom, who got married in 1982 and is "pretty much retired" (to quote her daughter), was called to be the matron of honor for her daughter and her son-in-law's big day. "She's doing a great job," Anna's mom said. "She's a super nice girl, and he's wonderful. He's kind of shy, but he's nice." (She didn't have to be told that, but she may have to sit down.) Another fabulous story of a woman's love for her man. I have always felt that I was lucky to have met my husband, he's funny and kind, a smart and a great friend. I love dancing with my husband, I'd do anything for him, for us. It feels so amazing, and I love him dearly., arXiv:0905.1604 \[hep-th\] (2009). F. W. Shu and H. Q: php loop or foreach to delete all the duplicate rows in mysql database I have two tables: 'images' and 'images_dupes'. Table 'images_dupes' contains ID, IMAGE, DATE_ADDED, TAGS. I have also a third table, 'IMAGES', that contains ID, IMAGE, DATE_ADDED I am currently looping through table 'images_dupes' using a foreach loop, but only checking if the ID is in table 'images'. While it is working, it is very slow when a lot of duplicates are found, so I was thinking if I could optimize it somehow using a while loop and just do the check in table 'images' but I don't know if mysql has some kind of function that can search for duplicates in a table. Any ideas? foreach($images_dupes as $image) { $dupe_id = mysql_query("SELECT DISTINCT IMAGE FROM images_dupes WHERE DATE_ADDED='$imgdate' AND IMAGE='$image' AND TAGS='$tags' AND ID NOT IN (SELECT IMAGE FROM images)"); while ($dupe_id = mysql_fetch_array($dupe_id)) { $dupe_id[] = $img->get_id(); $img->delete_dupes($dupe_id); } } A: This query will list duplicates for all columns in a single query SELECT image, date_added, tags, count() as num FROM images_dupes GROUP BY image, date_added, tags HAVING COUNT() > 1 Note the use of HAVING and COUNT() > 1; MySQL does not support the use of the HAVING clause in a SELECT statement without aggregates.
