Alternate Consumption Calc Screenshots: Alternate Consumption Calc APK File: Alternate Consumption Calc Mod File: Alternate Consumption Calc Version History: A technique is needed to easily produce a network in an electronic circuit device. When the above-described electronic circuit device is mass-produced, the number of wirings between devices is increased, and thus, a bonding line and pad to which the wirings are connected tend to be bulky. In order to avoid the above problem, it is convenient if wirings or pads can be formed in a narrow region of a substrate. As a technique that can provide a network in a narrow region, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. H06-320874, which is hereby incorporated by reference in its entirety, proposes a method for forming conductive lines in a plurality of layers by using an ordinary process for manufacturing an electronic circuit. FIG. 1 is a cross-sectional view illustrating a substrate 200 according to the method of Japanese Patent Application Publication No. H06-320874. The substrate 200 includes a first conductive layer 201, an insulation layer 202 covering the first conductive layer 201, and a second conductive layer 203. The second conductive layer 203 includes a first conductive line 203A and a second conductive line 203B. The second conductive layer 203 is formed over the first conductive layer 201 using a conductive material, for example, tungsten. The second conductive line 203B is included in the same layer as the first conductive line 203A. The first conductive line 203A includes a first conductive plug 202A, and a first conductive pad 202B. The first conductive pad 202B is a portion of the first conductive layer 201. The first conductive plug 202A is formed such that it penetrates
