Militants fired at a bus carrying troops in Afghanistan's central province of Ghor on Saturday, killing at least five people and wounding 19 others, officials said. The Taliban claimed responsibility for the attack in the province of Ghor. The incident came just a day after a US soldier was killed and two others were wounded in a similar attack in northern Herat. Insurgents are increasingly targeting Afghan government officials in order to undermine the authority of the leadership and force the resignation of ministers they consider corrupt. There have been a number of high-profile attacks on vehicles carrying government officials in recent months, including two in August that killed at least seven people. In June, a suicide bomber detonated his explosives-laden car near the home of interior minister Mohammad Hanif Atmar, killing four members of his family. The Taliban later claimed responsibility for that attack. Atmar was sacked on Monday but his government refused to resign. Ghor is the main transit point in the country for the import
