We have a good relationship with the Chinese, so I'm sure I'll be fine, even if I'm not allowed in. I guess this means that I am going to have to do that job sometime. Just as I'm about to step into the office of the Ministry of the Inner Ocean, a man I recognize as Mao's bodyguard comes running towards me. "Why are you here?" he asks. "Your father has come to visit," he says. "I don't believe you." "He's right here," I say, pointing to him, and he looks again. "You're lying." "I am," I reply. "My father can't possibly have come to visit me in Shanghai." "I'm telling the truth," I say, taking him by the arm. "Come with me," I say, and he follows me out of the Ministry of the Inner Ocean. After a while, we come to the front gate of the compound, and the sentry there, who didn't recognize me, gives the guard a signal that a visitor has arrived. The man's eyes are alight, like those of a schoolboy, and he seems almost unwilling to speak. I can tell something is very important to him, but I don't know what it is. "Take me to see him." I say. We pass through the courtyard, then past the house and down a path

Summary and Conclusions

In this letter, we have demonstrated a new scenario for QGP production in heavy ion collisions. In our model, we assume that the quarks which reach the critical temperature and subsequent freeze-out will decay rapidly into the mixed meson and quarkonia states. The latter are relatively long-lived states which escape the system and are therefore emitted freely from the system with an enhancement factor of approximately 10-100. Our simulation of the dilepton enhancement factor and the low mass dilepton enhancement factor from QGP formation is consistent with our model predictions.
