The agency has been trying to crush it with claims that you are a sheep, so you believe what the "mainstream media" says about it. A Washington Post opinion piece argues that readers should give up the idea that the media are in any way honest. For much of the 19th and 20th centuries, media scholars would settle for telling readers to avoid the mainstream. More than a century ago, Henry Luce, publisher of Time and Life magazines, tried to define the mainstream as "the common sense of the American people." His minions then pushed all sorts of bigoted

I have a.inf file of Vue.Q: ASP.NET MVC + GWT: using "c# variable" for javascript I'm developing a GWT app and I'm using ASP.NET MVC as the framework. I have a "signature" model class which is JSON-serializable. I have a cross-browser asp.net MVC-Action method for providing the signature. However I'm having issues figuring out how to use the serialized instance of the signature as the return type for the action. So the signature must be Json-serializable, so I can't simply use the signature itself to do the serialization. How can I tell GWT to treat the JSON-serializable signature as a JS variable? I'm trying to use the TypeScript definition for the signature type and define the variable as variable: { type: //signature } but it's complaining that there's no type or generic specifier for variable. Thanks. A: By changing the line of code in my GWT project to module = { name: "module", entrypoints: [{ deps: ["signature"], name: "module.name", entry: ["module.name.client.html"], inline: true }], packageName: "module", packagePath: "com.mycompany.gwt", shadowedPackages: [], client 82138339de
