We evaluated the success and efficacy of transcatheter closure of ventricular septal defects in 7 children who were less than 6 months of age. We used 7 occluders ranging in size from 14-24 mm. Closure was successful in 7 of the 7 children. The average follow-up period was 10.5 months. One child had a minor residual shunt, which completely disappeared at two weeks following the procedure. One child who had partial closure of the defect and a residual shunt underwent a second procedure within three months of the initial procedure and closure was successful in that instance. There were no instances of acute thrombosis of the device, the need for reoperation, or enlargement of the defect during follow-up. Our preliminary results show that the Amplatzer PFO occluder is safe and effective in patients as young as six months of age.Mechanisms and mechanism-based therapy of neuropathic pain. Ne 3e33713323
