has devoted considerable attention in recent years to the development of new, more compact, more efficient and lighter-weight fasteners for attachment of pipes, pipes and conduit conduits, conduits, tubing and the like to substrates such as metal and wooden beams and studs, roof beams and other framing and truss members. The use of solventless epoxy resin has been proposed as a replacement for conventional solvent based resins in an attempt to overcome the various problems inherent in the epoxy-res d0c515b9f4

The Japanese company is finally releasing a major update to the Xperia X series, and the Sony Xperia XA1 and Xperia XA1 Ultra have been confirmed to get the update as soon as it goes live. The Xperia XA1 got a bit of a bump with the new update, it got a couple of cameras, and Android 7.0 Nougat with an over-the-air update. We are not seeing an over-the-air update for the Xperia XA1 Ultra yet. However, the Sony Xperia XA1 Ultra has also received a few more improvements, not just that the camera has been upgraded but that the battery life is improved too. The Sony Xperia XA1 is also getting a new camera app for the front as well as a new Face Recognition app. According to the Sony Xperia XA1's community manager, Yai Monterde, the Sony Xperia XA1 Ultra is also getting the same new camera app, but a new face recognition app. This certainly makes the Xperia XA1 and Xperia XA1 Ultra the most exciting update the device will get this year. Sony has also announced that both the Sony Xperia XA1 and Xperia XA1 Ultra are going to be getting an update with Android 8.0 Oreo, but if you're an avid reader, you should have already known about that thanks to our mid-year Android 8.0 Oreo roundup. The Xperia XA1 and Xperia XA1 Ultra are going to be getting the update first in Japan with some Japanese carriers as we speak, but we are expecting a global release before the end of the year.
