Ballistic Pinball is VR without VR. It uses your Vive controllers to pick up, spin and drop the pinball in a virtual world. You can play alone or with friends in the same room. I've been working on this for about three years. So it's not actually brand new, but it's the first official release of this concept in VR. The goal has always been to get as close as possible to the experience of physical pinball. So you aren't actually looking at an image on a screen, but pinball feels just like pinball (which, by the way, actually happens to be one of the most fun and relaxing games ever invented!) Features: Simple, Fast, Modern - it doesn't take long to learn this game! Play alone or with friends in the same room. Play on up to 4 tables - there are 4 unplayable featureless tables that you can't play by yourself. Play VR board games with friends or play in your local tavern. Shoot the ball at targets as you try to hit the bonus ball on the jackpot. Get up to 50 balls per game! You can swap your Vive controllers with other people in real time Requires: Vive VR with SteamVR support Chaperone or Safety Mode with the 'Viewer Mode On' button to stop VR when someone else is playing Play your downloaded Pinball when it asks you to and the VR mode will automatically start (If you're using the Oculus DK2 you'll need to press the 'Viewer Mode On' button in SteamVR to stop the VR mode. You'll be able to play games without the 'Viewer Mode On' button, but VR won't be started automatically. See the Oculus Tips:) How to play: You can play Pinball with a Vive, Oculus or HTC controller in VR. You can also play Pinball with the Vive controllers and Google Cardboard VR. You can use the Vive controllers as just that, controllers. I've turned off the head tracking for these for performance reasons. You can still use them to play tabletop games, though. : KILL them all - Eugene V. Debs The most glaringly obvious portion of the young man's speech is a masterpiece of stripping away the careful cultural construction of the Democratic Party in order to point out who they are by drawing the stark and simple line down the middle of race, class and gender. It is the same country that allowed an African-American to be President of the United States by only 51 percent of the vote, that allowed a woman to be elected Vice-President of the United States by only 40 percent of the vote, that allowed a Mormon to be elected president of the United States by only 46 percent of the vote, and that launched a tradition of electing white men to the very top even after the passage of the Civil Rights Act (which, two dozen years later, was declared unconstitutional, effectively voiding and nullifying the will of the majority). The Democratic Party is a rump old party, a rump old party that listens only to those who it considers "to the left of centre" — to use Michael Moore's definition, a party of corporate lackeys — and does little more than forward the agenda of predatory business. It is a party whose atmosphere is stained with the blood of those who the party mired there, their voices too silent for them to be heard. It is a party that does not acknowledge its real constituencies: it does not listen to the working class, it does not listen to ordinary people, it is a party that places its own interests and profit margins above everything and everyone, and who would therefore ignore the real issues of 21st century America if they did not reinforce its own stock prices and profit margins. That is why that long queue was always there — for a party that refuses to acknowledge that the answer to what ails the average American is not some magic potion that it devises over a glass of Chardonnay and then sprinkles on American families by means of helicopter drops. That is why that long queue was always there, thinking that Obama was one of them and that he would take the time and effort to hear the concerns of the disenfranchised Americans who form every part of the Democratic Party. That is why they were so outraged over the feigned outrage of the left over the presidential eulogy of his mother. That is why they allowed a school of thought that has been at least half discredited on the Left for decades — that of Bill Ayers and his movement — to become

Everybody knows that but, the real question is how does one impress one? Here are a few tools you can use. First, it's always good to make a display in your entry way. Put a small statue of yourself on a pedestal and arrange some luxury, high end cat food and cat treats next to it. Put out two bowls and you're now ready to tip. The addition of a tinkle glass on the floor outside of the bowls will deter your cat from simply walking in and licking them. Next, find a few items that your cat will love. The secret to cat tipping is that you put it in your cat's favorite dish, and no dish is too small to hold. Get items like pretzels, bread, cheese, popcorn, or even an old toothbrush. Lastly, you can always use Instagram to impress your cat. Find and start a filter in your camera app that makes your cat look super cute and send it to your cat's Instagram, while tagging your cat in the post. Of course, if you have a small cat then instead of a pedestal statue, you can use a small garden stool. Place your cat on the stool as if it were sitting on a bench, and place out a bowl of his favorite food.They say cats have nine lives
