Early life Dogar was born in Brooklyn, New York to a Sudanese mother and an American father. As a toddler, he was influenced by music by his father - his parents were musically educated and were always playing music together. Dogar began playing piano at the age of 4, and soon began to experiment with drumming. Dogar also got his start in music by writing his own songs on the computer at the age of 9. Throughout high school, Dogar created an extensive musical portfolio, playing multiple instruments and teaching himself how to play an array of different genres. His high school years were spent at The Choate Rosemary Hall School in Connecticut. There, he sang in choirs, served as a music teacher to middle schoolers, taught senior high choir, and even sang a solo. Dogar got his first taste of international success in 2013 when he released the EP I Forgot (self-titled) alongside the single The Gold Rings. On March 16, 2016, Benjamin premiered his debut LP American Made as the official soundtrack for the 2016 film American Made. The eight-song album features collaborations with country music artists Kacey Musgraves, Kristian Bush and the iconic engineer who produced David Bowie's album The Man Who Sold the World, Nile Rodgers. The project received widespread acclaim and was named a USA Today Best Album of 2016. The project was received very well critically, several publications including AllMusic labeled it as "insanely good" and highlighted Benjamin's astonishing use of vocal layering
