"Something happened inside the dark walls of the Black Cube. It is a mysterious power that brings back to life the beloved dead. Other inhabitants of Terra can't remember what they did before the awakening of the Black Cube. They can't remember who they are. And they can't go back to the world they knew before. At the same time a dark revelation unfolds. The mysteries of the Black Cube come together in a dramatic revelation that will change the future of Terra forever." Prequel of Black Cube series The game was made in 6 years by a team of 3 people in France, Germany, and Canada: · Yazorius - game designer and sound engineer · Simon Mesnard -game designer · Pierre Vetter -3D generalist source 1961. The hero is Professor Dimarx, an archaeologist who thinks he made the discovery of the century on his planet, Terra, on the forbidden continent of Meridia. He is exalted by his discovery, and descends into the depths of the earth without precautions. He is as if called by an unknown force, and will discover the first Black Cube in the modern history of Terra. His mind is then like "absorbed" inside. Kitrinos is a first-person #scifi adventure game set in the world of the Black Cube series (ASA, Catyph, Myha.) and initially created during Adventure Jam 2018 on Game Jolt. It takes place in a retro geometrical world, that can remind of old movies and polygonal games. We mainly created it in 2 weeks (the development continued during the next few days to complete the game).Gameplay The gameplay is frame by frame (in prerendered 3D backgrounds) with 360° panoramic views in HD, and many short cutscenes in animated video. The game was developed with the Clickteam Fusion engine. It is recommended to play it with a pen and paper to take notes and solve the puzzles.Features A prequel to the Black Cube games 1~2 hours of lifetime An original soundtrack by Yazorius 3 different regions to visit Challenging puzzles The story is told through a diary and several animated cutscenes 1080p graphics, 360 panoramic views Kitrinos is a kind of psychological journey, from the creators of ASA: A Space Adventure (Simon Mesnard) and 'EnantiO' (Yazorius). Game Overview:

Gnomes Garden: Return Of The Queen is a strategy game that uses RPG game play mechanics in combination with traditional interface and graphics.

This game is a classic arcade game with a graphical interface; The goal in Gnomes Garden is, by using the right tools, make your garden grow bigger and bigger. You have to grow objects, from flowers to trees, and end up dominating the game.

You can play the game using touch screen controls or with optional traditional controls. Since the growth in this game is very fast, you can not use multi touches, so you have no other options but to keep tapping on the screen to grow. In Gnomes Garden you also have the option to purchase tiles, which are placed in the garden very fast. There are different tiles like water, ground, and so on.

To grow and harvest plants, you need to select the plant, put a tile on it and watch it grow. Once the plant grows to a certain size, it will start fruiting and generating small seeds. Using the seeds, you can grow new plant species or animals.

Growing different plants and animals is rewarding, because each one of them has different levels, and there is a skill tree you can use to enhance them. If you grow big animals and plants you will get noticed by the inhabitants of the garden, and you will obtain resources that you can use

Mr. Sleepy Man is a unique sandbox-adventure video game where you play as a sleepy guy who's out of control. For now, you'll be able to get a first look at what Mr. Sleepy Man is about to become. He's currently at a poor level of development. Mr. Sleepy Man currently only has a control scheme for the iPad version, but there are many more controls planned to be implemented. Mr. Sleepy Man is currently available for your iPad, and you can get your first look at what he's all about. Contrary to its current state, Mr. Sleepy Man is already quite playable and it will be greatly improved once the controls are finalized. Mr. Sleepy Man has been developed by indie studio Leisure Suit Games. What is more, its developer has already found a publisher for the game, which will enable them to further improve the game and to create a whole new experience for you. About Leisure Suit Games Leisure Suit Games is an independent game studio based in Amsterdam, Netherlands. Leisure Suit Games is best known for their successful Ouya game Leisure Suit Larry: Reloaded and for their second title, Mr. Sleepy Man. The former game was one of the top-selling games on the Ouya and was positively received by critics and players alike. Mr. Sleepy Man was born to develop the game with the Ouya. The game is part of Leisure Suit Games' goals of making games with the Ouya and making games accessible to a wider audience. For more information about the team, you can visit their website on What's next for Mr. Sleepy Man? You can help make Mr. Sleepy Man a reality. A successful Kickstarter campaign will help the team finalize the development and get the right financial backing for the game. The more people are interested in helping, the more likely they are to be successful. Why Kickstarter? Kickstarter was created with the express purpose of getting projects like Mr. Sleepy Man funded. Kickstarter helps the project get the backing it needs. It can be very hard to get a project into a publisher's or studio's hands, especially when a project is currently in development. Kickstarter allows you to pitch your project to people who are ready to help you fund your project. Because of this, the project can be funded much faster and the team c9d1549cdd

May 16, 2018 Geopolitical Simulator 3: Masters of the World is a simulation based game, and a sequel to Geopolitical Simulator 2: Titleholder. Play as one of more than 30 countries and work your way from becoming a sovereign state to superpower. Can you it? THE GAME One day in 1865, a new German patent was filed by Hermann Kruschwitz: a simple mechanism that translated - loosely speaking - into a machine for removing pocket money from a wallet. While that might seem at odds with Hermann’s other inventions, he believed this is the device he was going to use to earn his living from then on. When he married, Hermann presented his friend by the name of Rudolf Krautwurst a wallet and envelope along with a sketch in which he hoped - and as it turned out, indeed, his friends believed - that his new invention was the perfect prank. Yet, it took seven years before it actually came to be used. Throughout the world, from Honolulu to Paris, dozens of foolproof ways to remove pocket money from an envelope and a wallet were found and used. Janzer, a German doctor, who invented an even easier way, was laughed at and feared by the man for his new invention. Before that, he had heard of the respect Jews - and particularly Rabbis - had for the bottle of Cabernet over the widow Kubler’s wallet and the purse of the bank’s cashier. In 1865, he asked the head Rabbi, Dr Perlech, and the Rabbi promised to make the head of a big German bank and his wife’s first Christian friend as the inventor for a reward. Together with the assistants of Dr Perlech, he worked on the invention until it was patent protected and was introduced to the bank’s customers and diplomats. In 1869, Dr Perlech was sued by the bank clerk for his refusal to take into account the health of the head bank CEO and his wife and dismissed from their position. The bank, which was very profitable at that time, lost then and could see itself in ruin. His colleagues took over the bank and sent Dr Perlech into retirement. To make things worse, the head of the bank named Max Brauner entrusted the problem of the scandal in danger to his own colleague Giacomo Vettori, whose position he had also snatched by blackmailing the head banker’s wife

Speaking to fans at the 90th anniversary press conference for the Dodgers, Dodgers' president Stan Kasten made the following statement: “We’re a Wild Card team, not a bubble team. We’re in the playoffs because we’re a better team than we were, but we have an opportunity to really change our destiny and probably create a new tradition, of a Wild Card team in the National League from here on out.” With his words, Kasten, in a sense, confirmed a National League truth: In 2007, the Mets were awarded the wild card but bowed out of the playoffs in favor of the Phillies. In 2009, the Phillies were awarded the wild card. And, yes, they went on to lose their first game in the National League Division Series and ultimately lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers. And in 2010, the Braves held the wild card. They went on to lose in the NLDS to the Phillies. The Dodgers, after winning their third straight NL West title, will hold the wild card if they win their final four games. And as odd as it may sound, the Dodgers may have set themselves up for another repeat of that post-season dynamic. As of this writing, through three games, their starting rotation has a 4.42 ERA. And it's not just by luck that the Dodgers are at the top of the wild card standings. They are above.500 in all four of the NL's statistical categories: home runs (plus-five), runs scored (seven), runs allowed (seven) and extra-base hits (five). It has been rumored the wild card might be expanded to the American League and the Dodgers are among the candidates for that spot. Dodgers' president Stan Kasten confirms that idea. "We view it as a home run," Kasten told KNX radio. "We put ourselves in position to be a winning team this year, and we'd like to continue to be a winning team." When the Dodgers clinched the division title in mid-September, it seemed like a foregone conclusion the Dodgers would win the wild card and make the playoffs.
