What's new:

successfully took home the award at the recent Midlands Tourism Awards in Birmingham, gaining the Recognition for Best Location and Best Conference Venue for the third year in a row. It was 20 years to the day since Worms Crazy Golf opened its doors in Worthing for the first time. But we know how much the hotel has evolved in that time – not just from the design of the hotel itself, to the incredible storeys you can now take a virtual tour of online, but the brand has really come into its own as a fan favourite. It’s become the backdrop for countless think-pieces and Twitter trends, not to mention hundreds of media articles and features including, most recently, ITV’s ITV News, BBC News, Daily Mirror, Channel 4 News and Mirror and The Sun. Since 2006, tens of thousands of people have travelled from the UK and beyond, some just to kick a ball around in a small country town, but others planning to spend a break in the loveliest boutique hotel in the country. Speaking about the brand’s evolution and success, Martin Wildginer, General Manager at Worms Crazy Golf said: “You don’t need to have played the game to enjoy Crazy Golf, it’s one of those experiences that give people a good time. In a world of long-haul flights, a 2-3 hour drive and a packed hotel to arrive at a venue, it’s hard to think of a game that offers such a sound environment. We’re thrilled that at the helm of this great venue is a true show-stealer in Jonathan Peak; it’s absolutely fantastic.” To mark the twentieth anniversary of this incredible venue, the Guardian has teamed up with Worms Crazy Golf for a deep dive into what it’s been like running such a popular game and the key things that helped this Hampshire based destination win the award. What was the idea behind Crazy Golf? It was initially an idea of ours from way back in the mists of history. What are your thoughts on the current craze of Crazy Golf? [Laughs] We’ve never set out to create the ultimate Crazy Golf venue! We could sit here and say that’s what we’ve done, but our mission is to make sure we’re unusual for our guests. We’re unusual in that we’

Bouncy Cube is an arcade game where you keep the balance of a cube on moving platforms. There are thorns at the top of the level and you cannot allow the cube to touch them, for this you need to balance between the platforms moving up. But some platforms also have thorns, some do not hold the cube for more than a few seconds, and some move it in different directions. Thus, you need to balance on the platforms for the maximum amount of time so that the cube stays in order. However,...
