'Star Wars: The Last Jedi' and box office success The power of Force and the force of Star Wars is still very much at work after 'Star Wars: The Last Jedi' became the first movie in history to reach $1 billion in worldwide box office. There's only one thing left to do: Watch the sequel. For the hundreds of thousands of fans who watched Adam Driver jet across the galaxy in costume as Kylo Ren and Finn, the late addition of new characters, a shocking death and a Force-sensitive middle child — it was a joyous moment, and then the joy turned to something else. "I'm not really a celebrator," says Rachel Epstein, who came with her husband and two kids to see 'The Last Jedi' at about 1:30 a.m. at the Cinemark in the Galleria area. "It's a bit like Christmas morning, you know?" Epstein, like so many, is now recovering from the
