Description of the Related Art When materials are processed for manufacturing a product, various types of processing have been conventionally employed. One of the conventional processing methods is a method of processing materials in a site for crushing, conveying and processing as one unit, i.e., a crushing and conveying method. When materials are crushed and processed at the same site, they are generally crushed and conveyed by machines such as a mobile crusher, a sand crusher and a shaker screen. However, when the materials are crushed and processed at the same site, it is not easy to crush and process the
