This PDF includes: 1. Players handouts with goals, encounters, and encounter powers. 2. A PDF map. 3. An adventure with a short description. 4. A set of examples using the 'Make Monsters' template to create creatures suitable for this adventure. PLEASE NOTE: This is a game designed for Fantasy Grounds. All workflows are detailed in the workflow document included in the downloads folder of this download. Dangers within the lands of Primeval Thule speak of a dark magical past. A land of jungles, haunted ruins, and torrential rivers, the inhabitants of Primeval Thule have long kept their history shrouded from common perception. What happened here, what could still happen, what terrors have yet to be discovered, and what foul secrets lie within the ruins - none can say, for any who enter are never seen again. The Jungle of Zaal is a tangled place. It is a tangled place crowded with overgrowth, dangerous wildlife, and carnivorous plants. It is a place full of dangers, most of which are created by the inordinate growth of the jungle and the inhabitants that live there. Few that enter emerge the same as when they went in. Even those that do survive are barely so, for few that enter ever make it out, and those that do leave never speak of the Jungle of Zaal again. The Watchers of Meng are a band of heroes and adventurers who have been hired to discover the mysteries that still linger within the jungle, and return with a report to the rulers of the land who in turn will use their report to decide the future of all of Primeval Thule. Developer Details A primary goal of the designers of Fantasy Grounds was to make the workflow very easy to follow, so that they could bring the power of the workbench to their players. This PDF is designed with this goal in mind, with multiple workflows in the Resources folder that are designed to be implemented quickly and easily. experimental game that allows users to make a random connection with a stranger, connecting to a friend. The game is based in the USPTO Patent Office, and is played during a time period. The game can be classified as a "connecting simulation game." Connecting, of course, has a larger meaning. In Connections you create and connect connections in your city. You begin with a single connection with a friend, but you can meet and make connections with countless strangers. When you make a connection, the stranger will get an invitation that will show you a message. You will have to choose what to say with it. One of the strangers connected with you will respond at random, and the game will begin! "Connections is a game where you make connections, and it will increase in complexity during the game. The uniqueness is that you can make connections with any stranger for the duration of the game, with a fixed amount of time, which in the USPTO creates a scenario of unpredictability. Strangers will always answer with a message, and that message will always be unique. At the end of the game, the game will be over and everyone can see everyone else's connection. The game connects and reconnects, your connections spread to other locations and strangers appear there too. "Connections is a simulation game. You find yourself in a fictional area of the U.S.PTO, and you will make connections with various strangers who will receive messages. A stranger will respond to your message with a message of their own, and the game begins. Each stranger has a different personality and you will have to match your message with his or her reply. There are over a hundred messages to choose from. After receiving a message from each stranger you will be able to choose the best reply c9d1549cdd

What's new:

The Atlantic Wall The Atlantic Wall was Hitler's last The Allies' attempts to thwart Operation Dragoon along the shores of the Mediterranean Sea were unsuccessful. On 8 August 1944, the United States, United Kingdom, and France invaded Italy. On 9 August, U.S. forces headed west into Austria, where they encountered hardened defenses. U.S. and UK forces crossed the Danube River at Regensburg on 9-11 August. On 11 August, the British Eighth Army captured the Essen Gap, between Vienna and Prague, and halted its advance into Czechoslovakia. Both the Americans and the British were unfamiliar with the terrain on the Western European continent, and the "cakewalk" that they perceived was anything but on the Eastern Front. Operation Dragoon was thus delayed for several weeks while supply lines were secured and many "psychological problems", such as mutual mistrust between American and British soldiers, were solved. The end of the "short interlude of respite" following the Allied invasions of Poland, France, and the Netherlands in World War I was approaching, and the Germans in western Europe were realizing that they were fighting on a losing streak. Churchill realized that while the U.S. might not be actively involved in the ground war on the continent, its air power would be helpful. The Fuehrer agreed to discuss building detractors in German-occupied Belgium. While a group of engineering machinists had infiltrated to help sketch out a plan, air battles raged throughout the late summer. German fighter aircraft faced the American Eighth Air Force (previously, the Ninth), which began bombarding from bases in Britain in early 1944. By the summer of 1944, Bomber Command's first year of operations, the average American bomber crew had dropped almost 500,000 tons of bombs. The Americans had proved to both themselves and the enemy that bombers were a force to be reckoned with. In August, 6th Air Corps commander Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle led 12 B-25 bombers into Tokyo and dropped bombs, causing great destruction in downtown Tokyo and threatening the Japanese Emperor's primary palace at Hirohito's compound in the Imperial Palace. At a subsequent North African mission, two B-26 Marauders dropped bombs on the Italian port of Bari, destroying warehouses and dock

=== what the... im getting a standard "please wait" message when i try to play Im the only one having this problem, and there isnt anything posted about it (i think it has something to do with new internet providers) can someone help please?? Whoa there. I can play and enjoy my games, but to play 1up and Swords you have to activate your desktop in 4.75 What you have to do is go into Help and then to system info, then go back to the games and then select the game you want to run. I don't know if that helps but hopefully it does. I just played the game for the first time and the whole time my CPU's usage was around 35% so I wouldn't worry about it. anyways, go to the setup option and select "run on demand" it will open the setup window, select "Full" and it will run as supposed to. Maybe its because im running a new install of 4.75+ or maybe something went wrong during the install of the game but what do u guys think? I haven't really used 4.75 since 4.71 so I've heard some good and bad about it but I don't know about the whole patching thing. Whoa there.
