The aim of this report is to show our experience with laparoscopic adrenalectomy (LA) in the treatment of a patient with cortical adenoma. An 83-year-old woman with a diagnosis of an adrenal tumor on the right side and hypertension was referred to our department. Computed tomography scan demonstrated a well-defined mass in the right adrenal, measuring 4.5 x 4.5 x 4 cm. She underwent LA using four trocars. The tumor was embedded in the right subcapsular region with a serous layer, and was attached to the lateral edge of the right kidney by a stalk. Adrenal adenoma was removed in an en bloc manner with meticulous hemostasis. The patient was discharged from the hospital at postoperative day 4. Postoperative pathology showed an adrenal cortical adenoma. Postoperative course was uneventful, and the patient is well at follow-up. LA is a treatment option for adrenal cortical adenoma. It is a safe procedure that can be performed with a favorable outcome and low recurrence. The laparoscopic method improves both the patient's quality of life and the postoperative course.-related crimes, from charges of bribing a prison guard to selling amphetamines in some of America's most exclusive schools. In Britain, the Pre-Cana study found that church attendance fell by more than a third from 1999 to 2004, at a time when Catholic schools offered the most expensive private education in the country. The tide seems to be turning in Britain too. According to a report this year from the Independent Schools Council, a membership organisation for private schools, religious schools are now presenting the worst attendance record, in contrast with the lowest figures in the 1980s and early 1990s. "There has been an upturn in secular schools, but the biggest change is in religious schools," says the ISC's chief executive, Graham Brady
