What are some of the questions you ask yourself about your first draft before you begin writing it? Why do you need to be honest about your life? In this day and age, can you be honest and let yourself not be addicted to the vicious cycle of wanting to be liked? Do you write when you feel like it or when you feel inspired? Or both? All great questions. Honestly, for me, there is no fixed step by step approach to writing. What most people think is writing is in fact rewriting. Words, phrases, sentences, paragraphs - it goes from chaotic to controlled. But there is a pattern and process - start writing and... not sure. When I wrote my latest book, I bought an algorithm that worked for me. But what is the algorithm? 1) I broke the writing down into sections; 2) Each section/chapter, I had a title, that told me where I was in the story and what the character was going through; 3) And I listed the words
