If you have no tasks in your to-do list, it means that you have either just installed.Q: Android: Manage several access points I'd like to manage several APs for several devices in my home in order to accelerate access to the hotspot. Is there any way to have just one hotspot that create different interfaces for other devices? Thank you, A: You have two options (from least to most configurable): 1. The device specific solution: either you create a new AP each time for each device, or you use the same AP (e.g. the default hotspot) but create a new WLAN profile for each device. 2. The network/broadband specific solution: you can set an Interface for the AP to access the internet by using an additional OpenDNS record that you set in the AP. So, even if you set an SSID which is the same for all devices, you can distinguish them by a second parameter (an IP range).
